

US-Saudi Arabia Relations

The United States share a longstanding and important security relationship with Saudi Arabia and are committed to their security and weapon systems needs to increase their capacity for self-defense.

Talking Points

General

- Saudi Arabia plays a crucial role in maintaining security in the Middle East, due to its economic, political, and cultural importance and its strategic location.
- The U.S. military has had a mil-to-mil relationship with Saudi Arabia for decades which includes military personnel from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Special Operation Forces providing training, advising, and assisting in a variety of mission areas.
- The Department of Defense has reviewed U.S. support for Saudi coalition in Yemen, and determined it was important to support them in defense of their own countries but also to restore the rightful government.
- We remain committed to providing the Saudi armed forces with the equipment, training, and follow-on support necessary to protect Saudi Arabia, and the region, from the destabilizing effects of terrorism and other threats.
- The DOD's limited non-combat support, such as intelligence sharing, focuses on assisting our partners in securing their borders from cross-border attacks from the Houthis and improving coalition processes and procedures, especially regarding compliance with the law of armed conflict and best practices for reducing the risk of civilian casualties.
- The U.S. military support to our partners mitigates noncombatant casualties, by improving coalition processes and procedures.
- The final decisions on the conduct of operations in the campaign are made by the members of the Saudi-led coalition, not the United States.

- [If pressed on details of U.S. support] We are not going to discuss publicly any specific support we may or may not have provided for operational security reasons.
- [If pressed] The support to Saudi-led coalition is not unconditional. They should do everything humanly possible to avoid any innocent loss of life, and support the U.N.-brokered peace process.

Hope you're well and gearing up to dive into Thanksgiving....Before you do, though, hoping for a bit of help.

Namely, we've been tasked to staff USDP for his visit to the Reagan forum. As part of that, USDP's office asked for background materials/TPs on several topics. As you can see from the note below, he just asked that we had some material on Khashoggi. I'm guessing that falls to yall since it's a Saudi Arabia topic. (b)(6) -- I've added yall to the thread as the folks the policy phone roster says covers Saudi, but if I'm wrong, pls loop in the right folks instead).

(b)(6) cc'ed, is our lead for this material. He can send you the template that has been used for other topics.

We weren't given a set suspense but the rest of the material is already with USDP, so is something by tomorrow doable?

We're also checking with PA to make sure we can't just leverage a product they have, but didn't want to delay relaying the task to you. (b)(6) will follow-up shortly... many thanks!

Best

(b)(6) Regional Colleagues,

BLUF: USDP requests additional information/points from your orgs to support two speeches he is giving next week. Request input by 1600. Details below.

Details:

* USDP Rood is traveling mid-next week to speak at the Reagan National Defense Forum and to the Aerospace Industries Association (AIA). SPC was tasked to put together his remarks, using the framework of the NDS. For AIA, he's been asked to speak on "Implementing the NDS" (general topic, not just about allies and partners. He's the sole speaker and needs 15-20 mins of remarks). For the Reagan forum, he is on a panel with other speakers specifically on "the role of allies and partners in great power competition" (so 5-10 mins of brief opening comments before Q&A).

Thank you very much for your help on this. If you have any questions don't hesitate to ask.
